Statement of Compatibility with Human Rights

This Instrument is compatible with the human rights and freedoms recognised or declared in the international instruments listed in section 3 of the Human Rights (Parliamentary Scrutiny) Act 2011.

This Instrument has the following purpose:

- to declare service provided by Australian Defence Force (ADF) personnel on Operation HIGHROAD, the ADF operation to support the new North Atlantic Treaty Organisation led Resolute Support Mission in Afghanistan, as warlike service for the purpose of the Act.

This Instrument engages the following human rights:

- The right to health is the right to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health (article 12(1) International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights),
- The right to social security requires a social security system be established and that a country must, within its maximum available resources, ensure access to a social security scheme (article 9 International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights),
- The prohibition on interference with privacy and attacks on reputation (article 17 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights).

The Veterans' Entitlements (Warlike Service – Operation HIGHROAD) Determination 2014 establishes that service provided by ADF personnel on the supporting operation to the new North Atlantic Treaty Organisation-led Resolute Support Mission in Afghanistan, is within the definition of “warlike service” in section 5C(1) of the Veterans' Entitlements Act 1986.

Legitimate objective: Defence members who perform duty on operations may require special assistance and support on return from that duty. The requirement for support may increase as members age. Different levels of support are available depending on the nature of the service that the member has been required to perform. The actual decision about whether the nature of service will be warlike or non-warlike is made by the Executive. This declaration simply ensures that the nature of service that a member provides is reflected in the level and type of benefits that they may be eligible for as a veteran.

Reasonable, necessary and proportionate: Determining the nature of service that a member has provided allows the relevant level of additional support to be provided to assist the member with the health care and other needs that they may have as a veteran. Benefits may also be provided to a member's dependant partner, who is directly affected by the additional needs that a member may have as a result of their status as a veteran.

Although the application for benefits may require some provision of personal information and some limitation on the suppliers of health treatment and benefits that are provided, these restrictions are considered proportional:

- The personal information is treated in accordance with legislated privacy protections, and
- The benefits are additional to those provided to the general public to address veterans' special needs.

This Instrument is compatible with human rights because, to the extent that it may limit human rights, those limitations are reasonable, necessary and proportionate.
